WORKS IN PROGRESS

- Book project: "The Inevitable Party: How Political Parties Survive Attempts to Kill Them." This project investigates reform efforts designed to rein in or ban parties in several different states and examines how the parties managed to adapt to and even thrive amidst the new laws. Three of eight chapters have been written and are under review with the University of Chicago Press.
- "A Theory of Parties," with Kathleen Bawn, Marty Cohen, David Karol, Hans Noel, and John Zaller. Currently under review with Perspectives.
- "Agreement Scores, Ideal Points, and Legislative Polarization," with Betsy Sinclair, Jennifer Victor, and Gregory Koger. Currently under review with Social Networks.
- "One Vote Out of Step? The Effects of Salient Roll Call Votes in the 2010 Election," with Brendan Nyhan, Steven Greene, Eric McGhee, and John Sides. Currently under revise and resubmit with American Politics Research.
- "527 Committees, Formal Parties and the Party Networks," with Richard Skinner and David Dulio. Currently under review with Interest Groups and Advocacy.
- Party convention research project, with Michael Heaney, Joanne Miller, and Dara Strolovitch. NSF-funded survey of convention delegates and protesters at the 2008 Democratic and Republican National Conventions. This project has resulted in three draft papers to be submitted shortly to peer-reviewed journals:
- "Standing by your Candidate: Barack Obama, Hillary Clinton, and Group Identity Among Democratic Convention Delegates"
 - "Networking the Parties: A Comparative Study of Democratic and Republican National Convention Delegates in 2008"
 - "Gender Consciousness Through a Partisan Lens"
- "A Primary Cause of Partisanship? Nomination Systems and Legislator Ideology," with Nolan McCarty, Eric McGhee, Steve Rogers, and Boris Shor. To be submitted shortly to the American Political Science Review.
- "Developments in Political Party Research," solicited for inclusion in New Directions in American Politics, edited by Ray La Raja.
